Monthly Newsletter for Friends of Survivors' Rights International

February 2006

Welcome

Dear readers,

It is my pleasure to inform you of a very important activity Survivors' Rights International, Inc. (SRI) engaged in this month. As you will read, SRI involved itself in the struggle against human trafficking by helping an emerging organization that has great potential.

That organization is called Minorities and Survivors Improving Empowerment (MASIE). MASIE appeared in several of SRI's newsletters. You may remember reading what MASIE's Executive Director, Chong N. Kim, has said regarding human trafficking. In this newsletter, you will read how Ms. Kim has honored SRI by inviting me to be a member of MASIE's Advisory Board.

Please continue to visit SRI at <http://survivorsrightsinternational.org> to read future newsletters.

Sincerely,
Adriana Mourad

SRI'S Country Research Analyst Becomes a Member of MASIE's Advisory Board

As SRI's mission states, the goal of SRI is to help victims of "grave atrocities." To pursue its desire to ensure that victims' needs are met, SRI, through its Country Research Analyst, embarked on a new project.

Thanks to MASIE's Executive Director, Chong N. Kim, SRI will continue to help victims of human trafficking by serving in MASIE's Advisory Board. As an Advisory Board Member, SRI will support MASIE's efforts of over three years to help victims find the resources they need to start new lives.

SRI will also use its new role to enhance its own ability to raise public awareness of the causes, manifestations, and consequences of human trafficking, especially human trafficking arising from conflict situations. SRI sincerely hopes that this new opportunity will be the beginning of many more partnerships and collaborations that will help victims of genocide, crimes against humanity, and war crimes.
